Formula 1: Miami Grand Prix

We're go, go going to Miami as we return to the Sunshine State for the second annual Miami Grand Prix. The race's debut last year saw Ferrari's Charles Leclerc go into the event on top of the leaderboard and in pole position, but a spectacular start from Max Verstappen saw him claim the lead on lap nine and claim Miami's chequered flag – his second of his championship-winning season. ## Premier League

We're just three weeks away from the end of the 2022/23 Premier League season, and with Arsenal recently dropping vital points at Anfield, the door is open for a final rush from reigning champions Manchester City to snap victory from the jaws of defeat. As the pressure mounts, Sky Sports is bringing a colossal five games to your screens this week.

The week kicks off on Saturday as Liverpool host Brentford in a clash between teams who've enjoyed similar success this season. It's a disappointing one for Jurgen Klopp's team, who have likely failed to secure a Champions League position this year, but a strong performance from the Bees who have shown real staying power since their Premier League debut last season.

Then in an unmissable Super Sunday, the top two will see action as Manchester City host the struggling Leeds United, while Arsenal have a real test on their hands as they head to St James' Park to take on the current third place Newcastle United. Manchester City may never have a better chance to close the gap at the top, and Arsenal may never be under more pressure to take home three points.

Monday Night Football takes us to the opposite end of the table - relegation prospects meet when Nottingham Forest host Southampton. It's still not too late for either team to climb out of the drop zone, but they will need a clear win against their fellow strugglers in order to do so.

And the week isn't over for Arsenal, as the Wednesday night match sees them welcome Brighton to Emirates Stadium. It's another stern test against a team delivering some of their best results in years. It's a gauntlet the Gunners will have to run if they are to bring back their first Premiership trophy in two decades.
